Lyme Disease

With all of the natural beauty and outdoor activities in our area, it's important for Virginians to understand how to protect themselves from deer ticks, which carry bacteria that transmits Lyme Disease.

On August 5 I hosted a Lyme Disease Forum in Loudoun County. Nearly 300 people took time out of their summer schedule to attend the forum, which was designed to raise awareness about this debilitating disease. Many who attended the forum suffer from Bell's palsy, meningitis and other manifestations of Lyme Disease. I am hopeful that through increased education efforts about the threat of Lyme Disease, we can help to ensure people living in high risk areas know how to protect themselves and their children.

Please contact my Washington office at 202-225-5136 for more information on resources available to protect your family from ticks and tick-borne diseases such as Lyme.
